A MARAUDING ATTACK.

From knife attacks to vehicle rammings, the security threat in the western hemisphere is evolving. Now more than ever, businesses are concerned about the likelihood of lone wolf attacks occurring.

---

Countering violent acts

A violent attack by an armed individual intent on inflicting harm is difficult to defend against. Whilst there may be little to no physical damage, the aftermath of an attack impacts both the people and the continuity of a business.

Hiscox Malicious Attack goes beyond traditional insurance coverage to provide institutions with a proactive and innovative solution. Our broad coverage encompasses property damage, business interruption, loss of attraction and crisis management assistance as a result of an event involving a vehicle, an explosive device or any hand-held weapon.

Policy highlights:

Malicious attack case study

Las Vegas – 1st October 2017

Motivation

64-year-old Stephen Paddock carried out a shooting attack against an open-air concert from his room on the 32nd floor of the Mandalay Bay hotel on Las Vegas Boulevard, killing 58 and injuring over 540. The attack lasted ten minutes.

Weapons

23 firearms – mostly semi-automatic assault rifles.

Distance/area affected

Cordon of up to 1,000 metres surrounding the Las Vegas Village.

Business impacts in the local area

Following the attack, access was restricted and many establishments locked down or closed along a lengthy portion of the Las Vegas strip. At least two bullets struck a jet fuel tank at Las Vegas McCarran International Airport. South Las Vegas Boulevard was closed for 48 hours with retail and other venues in close proximity to the attack site shut for a further four days. Most businesses reported normal operations within a week.
